

Urban Building Projects Ltd were delighted to show their full support for this year's Lymm Festival by sponsoring the Historic Transport Day in the Village.

The well received event saw thousands of visitors flock into Lymm to see a parade of classic cars, whilst Bridgewater Canal looked a pretty picture thanks to the range of narrow boats and barges that also took part in the celebration.

Local television celebrity Matthew Corbett was on hand to support the show and a range of look-alikes were also present including the infamous Jack Sparrow.

Commenting on the day, Urban's Office Manager, Nicky Palmer, said: "We were delighted to support the Historic Transport event in Lymm village. Thankfully the weather held firm and it was great to see so many people enjoying themselves."

Photo: Mike Hannon and Carl Palmer (Urban Building Projects) take in the sights and sounds of Lymm's Historic Transport Day. Photograph courtesy of Warrington Worldwide.